
STUDENT ACTIVITIES CENTER BOARD OF GOVERNORS
OPERATING CHARTER

ARTICLE I: Objectives & Duties

Preface

During spring 1999 a referendum titled the Student Programs, Activities, and Resource Complex (SPARC) Referendum was submitted by the Office of the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs and was placed on both the undergraduate and graduate student ballots. The SPARC Referendum called for an increase of $18 per quarter or $54 per year beginning with the 2002-2003 Academic Year to be used “solely for the remodeling and creation of space to house student services and programs in the Men’s Gymnasium and the Wooden Center North Expansion.”¹ The SPARC referendum failed to receive the support of students. The Graduate Student Association (GSA) ballot produced a 39.5% “YES” vote and a 60.5% “NO” vote.² The Undergraduate Student Association (USA) ballot produced similar results with 46.17% voting “YES” and 53.83% voting “NO.”³

During summer 1999, the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs reconvened a SPARC advisory Committee, which would seek to find a better alternative to the failed SPARC 1999 effort and to include significant student participation. Students from the Student Fee Advisory Committee (SFAC), the GSA and USAC were included on this advisory committee. Throughout the summer and through the 1999-2000 academic year, the Committee gathered input from the various departments that would be affected by the SPARC 2000 referendum. After input was gathered and pricing was secured, the SPARC Advisory Committee forwarded its recommendations for approval and ballot placement by GSA and USAC. The SPARC 2000 Referendum sought to:

- (a) provide space for many of the student programs approved in the 1999 student “CARE” referendum in the building currently known as the Men’s Gymnasium;⁴ (b) provide additional indoor recreational facilities in a westward expansion (towards Drake Stadium) of the John Wooden Recreation Center, which has not been expanded since it was opened in 1983; and (c) allow for certain student service units such as the Student Psychological Services to be located in the Westwood Plaza area close to the Arthur Ashe Student Health and Wellness Center.⁵

The student fee connected to the referendum was specifically designated for costs related to construction and long-term maintenance of the proposed non-seismic renovations in the Men’s Gym and the proposed expansion of the Wooden Center. A small portion of the costs would be paid for by University (non-student) funds. Seismic renovations to the Men’s Gym are FEMA funded.⁶ The supplemental ballot language connected to the referendum indicated that a “separate student-majority board would be appointed to advise the Vice Chancellor-Student Affairs on the operating policies of the Student Activities Center (Men’s Gymnasium) building.”⁷

⁴ The 1999 Community and Retention Empowerment (CARE) Referendum passed by 83% of the undergraduate vote. That referendum increased funding to the Campus Retention Committee, Community Activities Committee, and the USAC Community Service Mini-Fund. It also provided base funding to the Student Initiated Outreach Committee.

When USAC was presented with the ballot language, it expressed deep reservations about the price of the referendum and its effect on the student tenants of the Men's Gym. USAC instructed the USAC President to meet with the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs to draft a set of conditions which would:

- a.) Satisfactorily accommodate student leadership in the management of the Student Activities Center
- b.) Ensure that the needs of the Community Programs Office (CPO) projects, the Student Initiated Outreach Committee (SIOC) and the Campus Retention Committee (CRC) would be accommodated in staging, space needs and building management; and
- c.) Ensure that costs overruns do not disproportionately affect students.

The Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs agreed to the conditions set by USAC and signed the agreement, which the GSA President agreed to support.⁸ As a result of the agreement, USAC placed the SPARC 2000 referendum on the spring 2000 USAC ballot.

The GSA placed the SPARC 2000 referendum on its spring 2000 ballot after a campaign led by the GSA President and GSA Vice President-Internal gathered the necessary signatures to place it on the ballot without formal GSA endorsement. After a successful campaign led by students involved with the Student Retention Center, Community Programs Office, Student Initiated Outreach Committee, Wooden Center Board of Governors, and the GSA Cabinet, graduate students approved the SPARC 2000 referendum with 74.5% voting "YES" and 25.5% voting "NO," making SPARC 2000 the first referendum since 1982 approved by graduate students. Undergraduate students overwhelmingly approved the referendum with 77.27% voting "YES" and 22.73% voting "NO".⁹ The total vote which led to the passage of the referendum was 76.9% "YES" and 23.1% "NO".¹⁰

After the referendum was approved, per the agreement with the Vice Chancellor, the USAC President appointed four representatives to the Student Activities Center Board of Governors. And the GSA President later made appointments to the committee. During the 2000-2001 academic year, the Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs did not establish a board of governors, but instead convened an administratively run SPARC advisory committee with GSA and USAC representatives. The committee was chaired by the Assistant Vice Chancellor of Student & Campus Life. During that year, the committee worked on detailed space proposals developed by the individual tenants of the future Student Activities Center (SAC). Furthermore, the committee worked with architects on the initial layout of the SAC and in receiving updates on the Wooden North project. The advisory committee was also briefed on staging efforts for the Men's Gym and the bidding process.

During the 2001-2002 academic year, the SPARC advisory committee remained an administratively run unit, with student majority representation, chaired by the Assistant Vice Chancellor of Student Affairs Administration. During that year, the committee received updates on the project and it also formed a subcommittee on operations, which was led by the Director of Cultural and Recreational Affairs. That committee worked on building management issues. The subcommittee submitted a report to the SPARC Advisory Committee during spring 2002.

During the 2002-2003 academic year, the SPARC Advisory Committee met to set the parameters behind a transition to the Student Activities Center Board of Governors. The first official meeting of the SAC Board of Governors was held during spring quarter 2003.
